- ADVANCED TRAINING IN THE LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY® METHODOLOGY

TRAINING - READINESS FOR CHANGE BUILDING SKILLS FOR TRAINED FACILITATORS

Readiness for change

Readiness for Change is an effective, evidence-based process to increase the success for driving change in groups, or organizations.

The process is applying the principles of the LEGO Serious Play method on insights from the global research project led by Professor Johan Roos. The training is designed to help trained LSP facilitators build the necessary technical and facilitation skills needed to increase participants readiness for change.

You will learn to facilitate object-mediated conversations about the complex drivers of peoples' readiness to implement change, and associated group dynamics:

- When it is unclear how psychologically and behaviourally prepared organizational members are to initiate and/or implement change.
- When organizational members' shared resolve to implement a change is mixed.
- When their shared belief in their collective capability to implement a change is uncertain.

Readiness for Change is not change planning

This is a process to deeply understand the human change dynamics and how to constructively deal with it for increase readiness for change, before change initiatives are rolled out.

Readiness for Change works by combining evidence-based theories about readiness for change with the LEGO Serious Play method.

What is to be gained from this process:

- A deeper understanding of what drives individuals' readiness for change.
- A set of new skills building exercises focusing on change readiness.
- Greater capability and confidence to facilitate workshops focused on preparing people for change initiatives.

TRAINING - REAL TIME STRATEGY FOR THE BEAST FOR TRAINED FACILITATORS

RTS for the Beast

Real Time Strategy for the Beast is a fast and effective process to confront a complex Issue (or Beast) at any time, in any space.

You will learn to facilitate complex issues and group dynamics:

- An issue that is constantly at the forefront of the team's mind.
- Where there are no successful precedents upon which to base a solution.
- The complex issue has ramifications that you can see, as well as those that you can only imagine.
- It diverts energy and attention from normal day-to-day business operations.
- It requires action, but the team does not know where to begin.

RTS for the Beast is a not only problem solving

-This is also a process of understanding the beast in order to deal with it.

RTS for the Beast works by applying Real Time Strategy concepts to the complex Beast, to allow participants in the work process to make the right decisions in the face of your intention and emergence.

What is to be gained from this process:

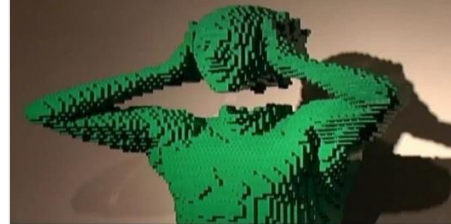

- A deeper understanding of the identity (nature) of the complex issue.
- Greater insight, commitment, and confidence to tackle the complex issue.
- A firmer grasp of both the sphere of influence of the Beast and the factors (Agents) that impact the Beast.
- Simple Guiding Principles to help making the right decisions for dealing with the Beast.
